

RMO Campaign

2025

The Metro North Public Health Unit is looking for a registrar in Public Health Medicine. This role would benefit someone who is currently an advanced trainee with the Australasian Faculty of Public Health Medicine or who is looking to become an advanced trainee. Infectious diseases or paediatric registrars with an interest in public health would also benefit from the position as non-core training time.

WHAT WE OFFER

- Metropolitan public health unit that manages the breadth of notifiable conditions
- Home to the Queensland Southern Syphilis Surveillance Service
- International airport and international cruise terminal within jurisdiction
- Strong research culture
- Opportunities across broad areas of the AFPHM curricula including but not limited to: communicable diseases, evaluation, environmental health, evidence-based medicine / public health information and critical appraisal, and screening.
- Experienced FAFPHM supervisors.

Submit your application through the RMO campaign.

For more information, please contact Dr Megan Young:
megan.young@health.qld.gov.au
or phone 07 3624 1111