

Network training rotations, hospital information and contacts

The network is a statewide system of training designed to support Queensland trainees in meeting Royal Australasian College of Physicians (RACP) basic training requirements over a pre-determined period (up to 3 years). Queensland Health is responsible for and oversees the network. In Queensland, endorsement of basic training is limited to medical officers that have been formally selected into the training network.

If successful, you'll be appointed to one of five network "rotations" to complete basic training. You'll move between multiple hospitals within your rotation over the course of your basic training. You should expect to work a minimum of 6 months at any of the rotation's assigned hospitals as listed below (including fly-away locations).

Subspecialty exposure

Each trainee's hospital placement is designed to ensure an appropriate combination of terms that will meet the training criteria established by the RACP, as well as providing a well-rounded program in basic physician training.

Far North rotation

The Far North rotation includes accredited terms in basic physician training at the following hospitals:

Cairns Hospital

165 The Esplanade, Cairns QLD 4870

Innisfail Hospital

87 Rankin Street, Innisfail QLD 4860

Atherton Hospital

Cnr Jack & Louise Street, Atherton QLD 4883

Why choose the Far North rotation?

Trainees are drawn to Cairns for its unrivaled access to the Great Barrier Reef and Daintree Rainforest, a wealth of hiking trails, and a range of outdoor activities. But what truly keeps trainees invested in Cairns is our supportive hospital culture, the chance to engage with a variety of subspecialties, and our comprehensive, consultant-led exam preparation. Located in tropical Northern Australia, the Far North rotation offers a one-of-a-kind experience—providing exposure to rural, remote, and First Nations Australian healthcare, which adds invaluable perspective and depth to your training. The region's tropical climate and limited healthcare resources in its more remote areas, foster unique clinical conditions, while laying the foundational knowledge you need for both exams and your career as a physician. Despite its "remote" reputation, Cairns is home to world-class specialists and researchers, boasts easy access to international flights, and has a vibrant food scene that is hard to beat.

If you're ready for a professional and personal adventure, Cairns is an opportunity you won't want to miss.

Cairns Hospital

Although trainees will spend most of their time in Cairns Hospital, a three-month rotation to either Atherton or Innisfail Hospital is required once during the 3-year training period. Cairns offers a consultant-led daily teaching roster and an intensive exam preparation schedule.

The subspecialty term experience available at the Cairns Hospital includes:

Cardiology	Medical Oncology	General Medicine
Endocrinology	Haematology	Palliative Medicine
Infectious Diseases	Rehabilitation Medicine	Outreach Medicine
Geriatrics	Respiratory &amp; Sleep	Medical Assessment Unit
Gastroenterology	Intensive Care	Hospital in the Home
Nephrology	Neurology &amp; Stroke	Immunology/Rheumatology

North Queensland rotation

The North Queensland rotation includes accredited terms in basic physician training at the following hospitals:

Townsville University Hospital

100 Angus Smith Drive, Douglas QLD 4814

Mount Isa Hospital

30 Camooweal Street, Mount Isa QLD 4825

Why choose the North Queensland rotation?

Trainees will spend most of their time at the Townsville University Hospital (TUH). TUH is Australia's largest and only level 6 regional tertiary (RACP level 3) accredited training hospital. Trainees are rostered two subspecialty rotations annually consistent with RACP training requirements. This majority single center rotation allows close ties with supervisors and mentors facilitating pastoral care and high levels of teaching, leading to a consistent excellent exam pass record.

Although trainees will spend most of their time in TUH, 2 trainees are also allocated each term (Gen Med & Renal) to Mount Isa Base Hospital (MIBH). MIBH offers a unique opportunity to experience rural and remote medicine, outreach and gain an understanding of health issues faced by Australian First Nations communities. MIBH also offers greater responsibility in a well supervised environment with accommodation, transport, and financial incentives as per the current award. About half of our trainees are likely to be required to rotate for at least one term to MIBH, though this may be less year to year as many who go once, love to do a second term as well!

TUH provides consultant delivered educational sessions over the 3-year program targeted to prepare candidates for success at the RACP written and clinical exams. Trainees who successfully complete their basic training with us will have potential to commence advanced training in almost all subspecialties of Medicine determined by subspecialty selection and allocation. TUH offers the ideal combination of excellent metropolitan care, work life balance and future opportunity.

The subspecialty term experience available at the North Queensland Rotation includes:

Cardiology	Medical Oncology	General Medicine
Respiratory &amp; Sleep	Haematology	Geriatrics
Infectious Diseases	Palliative Medicine	Neurology
Gastroenterology	Intensive Care	Nephrology
Acute Assessment Unit	Endocrine/Rheumatology	Public Health

Why choose the Southside rotation?

The Southside includes nine hospitals, with unique opportunities to train in both Queensland Health and non-Queensland Health settings. Employment conditions including leave entitlements will be as per the employing hospital's policies. Trainees have access to a broad range of sub-specialties, as well as state of the art research facilities such as the Translational Research Institute and the Mater Research Institute.

The subspecialty experience available on the Southside rotation includes:

Cardiology	Gastroenterology	Haematology
Vascular Medicine	Nephrology	General Medicine
Intensive Care	Medical Oncology	Neurology
Endocrinology	Rehabilitation Medicine	Perioperative Medicine
Infectious Diseases	Respiratory &amp; Sleep Medicine	Rheumatology
Geriatrics	Palliative Medicine	Immunology

Exams

Trainees will have access to a comprehensive written and clinical exam preparation program including: didactic teaching, short and long case (public and private) sessions, as well as trial exams at a home and away site. The timing of the RACP examinations, both written and clinical, is taken into consideration when terms are allocated.

Why choose the Northside rotation?

The Northside rotation provides trainees with a unique opportunity to train in various parts of Queensland, whilst experiencing a diverse and well-rounded training program. Incorporating some of Queensland's largest metropolitan hospitals that offer access to niche subspecialties and, well-regarded regional training settings that encourage a personal approach to training and strong linkages with local supervisors.

The Northside includes 6 standalone settings as well as a further 3 that are linked to form the Sunshine Coast Hospital and Health Service (Sunshine Coast University, Nambour, and Gympie Hospitals).

The subspecialty experience available on the Northside rotation includes:

Cardiology	Gastroenterology	Haematology
Rheumatology	Nephrology	Neurology
Intensive Care	Medical Oncology	Nuclear Medicine
Endocrinology	Rehabilitation Medicine	General Medicine
